BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS,

Printed for J. ALMON, Bookseller and Stationer, opposite Burling-ton-house in Piccadilly, London.

I. A COLLECTION of PROTESTS. From the first upon record, in the reign of Henry III. to the present time. In two large octavo volumes. Price 12s. bound.

Although it is presumed, that no address to the public will be necessary to recommend this work, because it sufficiently speaks for itself, yet it may be requisite, for the reader's satisfaction, to shew in what respects it differs from those which have gone before it. The first Collection of Protests was published in 1735; the second in 1743; and the third in 1747; all of them beginning with the year 1641, and ending with the dates of their respective publications. The collection which is here offered to the public, ascends to the first upon record in the year 1242, and is continued to the end of June 1767, thereby including several not made public before. Those of the last twenty years will, in all probability, be esteemed the most interesting, as the subjects which gave occasion to them are allowed to be of the utmost importance. This work is accompanied with an accurate and copious Index, which the other collections want, and which it must be confessed is indispensably necessary. And to the whole is subjoined the very scarce and valuable tract of St. AMAND on the legislative power of England: wherein the origin of both houses of parliament, their antient constitution, and the changes that happened in the persons that composed them, with the occasion thereof, are related in chronological order; and many things concerning the English government, the antiquity of the laws of England, and the feudal law, are occasionally illustrated and explained.

II. A New and Impartial COLLECTION of INTERESTING LETTERS, from the public papers; many of them written by persons of eminence, on a great variety of important subjects, which have occasionally engaged the public attention; from the accession of his present majesty, in October 1760, to May 1767; particularly on Mr. Pitt's resignation in 1761; lord Bute's accession in 1762; the peace, and other measures of that administration; lord Bute's resignation in 1763; all the original letters, papers, &c. &c. relative to the North Briton, and every branch of Mr. Wilkes's case; with a careful selection of all the constitutional essays and judicious observations on the various interesting points of that celebrated public cause; the whole of which were never before collected together: several valuable papers on trials by juries; parody on Chevy-Chace; the remarkable letters on the change of administration in 1765, by Anti-Sejanus, the Occasional Writer, J. J. &c. &c. A great number on the taxation of the colonies; Mr. Pitt's acceptance of a peerage in 1766; the measures of his administration; dearness of provisions; letters of Tranquillus; the supposed correspondence with Buckhorse; and above one hundred others, on a great variety of important subjects. In two vols. 8vo. Pr. 10s. bound.

The merit and importance which the news-papers have, of late years, acquired from the liberal communications of gentlemen of the first rank, both in politicks and literature, have excited an universal regret, at seeing the valuable productions of such writers doomed indiscriminately to oblivion with the fugitive pieces of the day.—It was the want of a proper publication, wherein to distinguish the writings of such authors, that suggested the idea of this Collection, the intention of which is to preserve and transmit to posterity, such sensible and well-written papers as appeared during the years 1760, 1761, 1762, 1763, 1764, 1765, 1766, and 1767, on both sides of every question which arose from the circumstances of the times, the necessities of the state, or the humour of the age.

In January next will be published, Volume the First, of

The History of England, from the Revolution, to the end of the fourth year of King George the Third. By JOHN WILKES, Esq;

" Nimum TARQUINOS regno assuefle—non placere nomen, periculoso LIBERTATI esse. LIVY.

" Ego hoc laboris præmium peto, uti me à conspectu malorum, quæ nostra quatuor pœnè per annos vidit ætas, tantisper certè, dum prisca illa totâ mente repeto, avertam, omnis expers curæ, quæ scribentis animum, esti non flectere à vero, solicitem, tamen efficere possit." Ibid.

* * This work will make three volumes in quarto. The first contains the reigns of king William and queen Anne; and is compiled from a variety of interesting materials, which no other historian has seen.

III. The LONDON MERCHANT. A Tale. Price 2s. sewed.

IV. Three Interesting Tracts, by John Wilkes, Esq; late member of parliament for the borough of Aylesbury, viz. Observations on the papers relative to the rupture with Spain.—A Letter to the worthy Electors of Aylesbury.—And a Letter to his Grace the Duke of Grafton. In one volume duodecimo. Price 2s. 6d. sewed, and 3s. bound.

V. The Political Register, and Impartial Review of New Books. Published monthly. Price one shilling each number, the first of which came out June 1, 1767. This work is divided into two parts; the first consists wholly of original essays and interesting papers, many of them written and communicated by persons of eminence; and the other a candid and disinterested account of all new publications.

VI. The PEERAGE of SCOTLAND: a genealogical and historical account of all the peers of that antient kingdom; their descents, collateral branches, births, marriages, and issue. Together with a like account of all the attainted peers; and a complete alphabetical list of all those nobles of Scotland whose titles are extinct; which was never before printed. Collected from parliament rolls, records, family documents, and the personal information of many noble peers. With the paternal coats of arms, crests, supporters, and mottoes, most beautifully and accurately engraved. In one volume octavo. Price 6s. bound.

* * The authors profess to have given in this volume, the clearest, most authentic, and best digested account of the noble families of Scotland, hitherto published; and, by omitting unnecessary digressions, and ostentatious quotations from histories and biographical memoirs, which only only serve to encrease the price, without contributing to the purpose of such a work, have exhibited their genealogies, clear and explicit; so that every collateral branch is seen with great facility and exactness; and few even of the gentry of Scotland, who have intermarried with the nobility, but may here discover by what degree of consanguinity they are allied.

VII. The PEERAGE of the KINGDOM of IRELAND, upon the same plan with that of Scotland, and the ARMS executed in the same masterly manner, is in great forwardness, and will speedily be published. In the mean time, if any nobleman or gentleman will be so obliging to communicate any materials for the correction and improvement of this work, they will be most gratefully received by the publisher, J. Almon, bookseller in Piccadilly, who will carefully forward them to the editors. It will be comprised in two volumes octavo, price 12*s.* bound.—And speedily will be published, A New Edition of COLLINS's ENGLISH PEERAGE, continued to the present time, and enriched with many very valuable additions. In seven volumes octavo. Price two guineas bound.

VIII. The COMPLETE GRAZIER, or Gentleman and Farmer's Directory; containing the best instructions for buying, breeding, and feeding of cattle, sheep, and hogs, and for suckling lambs; a description of the particular symptoms commonly attending the various distempers to which cattle, sheep and hogs are subject, with the most approved remedies; directions for making the best butter, several sorts of cheese and rennet; different methods of stocking a grass farm, with the particular expence and profits of each; how to prepare the land, and sow several sorts of grass-seeds to advantage; directions for raising proper fodder for cattle and sheep; particular instructions for ordering, breeding, and feeding poultry, turkeys, pigeons, geese, ducks, bustards, pea-fowls, pheasants, partridges, and tame rabbets; also directions for making fish-ponds or canals, and for storing them, and ordering the fish in the best manner. With several other useful and curious particulars. Price 3*s.* bound.

This book was written by a private gentleman, who intended to retire into the country, and who designed it for his own directory; but not being able to find a place that suited him, owing to the spirit of engrossing farms, and the exorbitant rents, he gave up his design: and, in the course of his reading, not having met with any book which treated solely upon grazing, he on that account resolved to publish his own.—It will be found, perhaps, to contain many useful observations, not unworthy the attention of the landed gentlemen and farmers.—In it are contained very full directions for chusing and purchasing cattle; for the management of grass lands, and particularly the manner of ordering spurry or star-grass; a copious account of the best manner to order or manage poultry, and other birds for culinary use, which is not to be met with in any other book; together with ample directions for making butter and cheese: and a great variety of other useful and interesting particulars, which the reader will find in the table of contents.

IX. The ROYAL KALENDAR for England, Scotland and Ireland, a new edition corrected to the present time; containing accurate lists of the complete establishments of Great Britain and Ireland.

the four houses of parliament, all the officers of state, revenue, law, &c. in the three kingdoms, army, navy, &c. All with the last corrections, and including above five thousand names not in the other books of this kind. Together with the arms, supporters, crests and mottoes of the nobility, engraved. Price only 2s. bound, and 2s. 9d. with an almanack.

X. An Essay on Crimes and Punishments, translated from the Italian, With the Commentary of M. de Voltaire, translated from the French. Price 4s. 6d. bound.

It is now about eighteen months since the first publication of this work; in which time it hath passed no less than six editions in the original language; the third of which was printed within six months after its first appearance. It hath been translated into French; that translation hath also been several times reprinted, and perhaps no book on any subject was ever received with more avidity, more generally read, or more universally applauded. The author is the marquis Beccaria of Milan. Vide translator's preface.

XI. The HISTORY of the MINORITY, during the years 1762, 1763, 1764, and 1765. Exhibiting the conduct, principles, and views of that party. A new edition, being the fourth, with several additions. Price 5s. bound, or 4s. sewed.

* * The very extraordinary, and almost singular success which this book hath met with, is the strongest and best testimony of its merit. It has moreover been translated in Holland, France, and other foreign nations; in which, as well as in England, it is much read and esteemed.

XII. Mr. Philipps's History of the Life of Cardinal Pole. A new edition. In two volumes octavo. Price 10s. bound.

XIII. Historical Memoirs of his late Royal Highness William Duke of Cumberland. Inscribed to the earl of Albemarle. In one volume octavo. Price 6s. bound.

XIV. The Trade and Navigation of Great Britain considered. By JOSHUA GEE. To which are now added several interesting Notes, and an Appendix concerning the trade with Portugal. The whole carefully revised by a merchant. Price 3s. bound.

This valuable book has many years been very scarce, although several times strongly recommended by the best judges and writers on trade; and universally allowed to be one of the most interesting books on that subject. The many capital questions which have been lately agitated, and the several others which are shortly expected to come under parliamentary consideration, have occasioned a new edition of this book to be earnestly wished for by many persons; as the whole British trade is therein judiciously examined, and a great number of useful improvements pointed out.

XV. The Conduct of the late Administration Examined, relative to the American Stamp-act. Containing a great number of original papers extremely interesting to the public, particularly the letters of Mr. Conway to the governors in America; the answers; representations of the board of trade to the king, &c. &c. A new edition. Price 3s.

" This pamphlet abounds with new arguments in favour of the stamp-act, and with severe reflections on those ministers who patiently beheld the laws of Great Britain violated and rejected, her officers insulted, her authority authority condemned, and her government in America dissolved; who had tamely looked on, while to maintain the independence of the colonies, an American senate was formed, a regular force embodied, and a dangerous and encreasing revolt meditated, and who, in short, by their neglect and connivance, had sacrificed the reputation, empire, and interest of Great Britain." Vide Gent. Mag.

XVI. A Letter upon Libels, Warrants, Seizure of Papers, &c. &c. With the Postscript, and an Appendix. Sixth edition. Including the author's last corrections and additions. Price 2s. 6d.

XVII. The Security of Englishmens Lives; or the Duty, Trust and Power of the Grand Juries of England. By Lord Somers. Price 1s. 6d.

XVIII. A Speech against the Suspending and Dispensing Prerogative. "It is but forty days tyranny at the outside." Per legem terræ. The sixth edition, corrected. Price 1s. 6d.

XIX. The Debates and Proceedings of the British House of Commons, during the third, fourth, and fifth sessions of the third parliament of his late majesty, held in the years 1743, 1744, 1745, and 1746. In two volumes octavo. Price 10s. 6d. in boards, and 12s. in boards.

* * * In the debates of this period are many important motions, arising from a variety of interesting events, both domestic and foreign. Several material changes in the administration were the consequence of those debates. As the attention of parliament was occasionally employed upon a long and expensive war with both France and Spain, and the suppression of an unnatural and intestine rebellion; a moment's reflection will shew this to have been one of the most important periods in our history. It is therefore to be regretted, that these debates have not been collated and digested before, and that so necessary a work has been so long neglected; a work so essentially useful to every member of parliament, and every lover of constitutional history. These debates, many speeches in which were furnished by the speakers themselves, and all of them have been compared with authentic notes taken in the house, are arranged partly upon the same plan with Chandler's collection, which is brought down to the year 1742; as is also Torbuck's; but with such improvements from the journals, and other authentic papers, as, it is presumed, will render them worthy the notice of every British legislator.

A Continuation of this work is in the press, and will be published in the spring of 1768.

XX. The TRAVELLER's POCKET-BOOK; or, Ogilby and Morgan's Book of the Roads improved and amended, in a method never before attempted. Containing, 1. An alphabetical list of all the cities, towns, and remarkable villages, shewing in or near what road they are situated. 2. The distances, in measured miles, from London to all the cities, towns, and remarkable villages, in England and Wales, according to the new-erected mile-stones; and an account of such noblemen's and gentlemen's seats as lie near the road-side. 3. The cross-roads in England and Wales. 4. A whole-sheet map of the roads in England and Wales, fitted to bind with the book. 5. The post-master-general's account of the nights that post-letters are dispatched to the several trading towns; and the the expence of sending a letter or packet by express to any part of the kingdom. 6. A list of the fairs in England and Wales, regulated according to the new stile. 7. Some useful rules for riding, drawn from nature and experience. The fourth edition, corrected; with many additional cross-roads. Price only 1s. 6d. bound.

XXI. The FOREIGNER's GUIDE, in French and English; being a very proper companion for every stranger on his coming to London; containing a description of every thing in that city and its neighbourhood, worthy his observation. Price 2s. 6d. bound.
